THE QUALITY HARDWARE OF THE 'PENNYRILE'

THE WITH CURVE FENCE A

Do you know what that means? The "Tension Curve" is a necessity to a good fence, giving it elasticity and every contraction due to cold or expansion due to heat or sudden and severe pressure is promptly taken care of, the fence remaining in normal position at all times and under all circumstances.

The American Fence is the most popular fence on the market, and its many advantages over inferior wire fences makes it the cheapest. It is hog and pig tight, horse and mule high and possesses bull strength.

Any good improvement adds to the value of the farm, and nothing more than the American Fence adds to the beauty thereof. Good fences and lots of them go a long way toward solving the question of bigger profits, and in buying fences it pays to get the BEST.

We handle every grade of this fence and you will always find the prices right.

PRICE SELLS OUR HARNESSES.

We have the fullest line of harness in Western Kentucky. Every article in this line is the best money can buy, is made from the best grades of leather, and our prices please the most economical.

Our bridles are made of heavy leather, are durable and easily adjusted. We have a number of assortments in both curb and limber bits and of any desired weight.

We have a full line of wool and hair padded horse collars made from heavy oak tanned leather which are sure to please you.

CLEAN SEED AT SHORT PRICES.

Seed sowing time is here and you will want good pure seed for sowing, and we call your attention to the fact that we have every seed adapted to this climate.

We have blue grass seed, orchard grass, red top, clover [alfalfa-alsike], and oats.

The farmer must depend upon quality when it comes to buying seed. Nothing but the best is any good for his use for a poor grade is worthless, besides he loses his time, labor and price paid therefor. We have the best.

A BUGGY BUILT FOR EASE.

For ease, comfort, durability and economy, The Geo. Delker Buggy is unexcelled.

The finest of all springs are used in the manufacture of this carriage; the steel plates are carefully graded, swaged and drawn out to French points, giving it the full amount of elasticity and making it a most comfortable carriage.

The foundation of a good buggy is the wheels. The makers of the Geo. Delker Buggy are very careful in the selection of the very best of tough young hickory for spokes and felloes. Hubs are of rock elm as hard as marble, being put together by Hydrostatic pressure, making the strongest wheel possible.

Every portion of this vehicle is securely braced, re-enforced and strengthened making it the only buggy to withstand the hardships of a rough country.

No other vehicle of equal quality can be found on the market at equal price. A "Genuine Delker" is the best investment. We have fifty styles and prices are low enough to be in the reach of all.

YOUR SATISFACTION IS OUR SUCCESS

GOOD GUNS WITH PRICES SHOT.

We are headquarters for sporting goods, the leading brands of guns are in our case and our prices are right to please. Inspect our line before buying elsewhere, and you'll be convinced.

FOR WOMEN.

Everything that will satisfy their desire from the tiniest button hole shears to the celebrated Majestic Range. Enamel ware, silver ware, carving sets and everything that makes cooking easy.

HEAVY HARDWARE

Roofing, lime and cement, which we always have on hand in great quantities.

Our V. crimp and galvanized roofing will not rust, and any one that can drive a nail can cover the most costly mansion. It makes a good cheap roof, is quite substantial and will last for years. We have also the Rub-er-oid and Congo in the composition roofing. Have just received a car load of lime and cement.

Our prices are right.

SIGNS OF EXCELLENCE ARE WRITTEN ON OUR WAGONS.

The wagons we sell have a world wide reputation. 'Tis said: "The sun never sets on the Studebaker." While they cost a few dollars more than the ordinary wagon, everybody knows they are far better for they are the wagons that last. They are the wagons with a reputation which they have won upon their true merits.

The Studebaker wagon is made by men who know what a good wagon is, and the point they have reached along this line is near perfection.

It is impossible for us to give the many good qualities of the Studebaker, but ask you to make full investigation of the merits of this wagon before buying.

We also have the agency for the celebrated Milburn wagon, and have a number on hand.

SADDLES.

Let us saddle your horse with one of our high grade saddles and you'll soon know the real pleasure of horse-back riding. We have an unequalled variety to select from any of which would add to the looks of your horse.

Our "Texas" saddle is a well built saddle and is quite popular with all stock men. It has heavy steel fork tree, simply unbreakable, fits the horse's back and your pocket book.

OILS, PAINTS AND VARNISHES.

We have paints and varnishes of any color, and spring is the best time to use it.

Acme Quality paint cannot be surpassed; floors, furniture and hardwood use Acme Quality Varno-Lac.

FOR MINER

We have a full outfit of miner's supplies. Lamps, candles, blasting powder, dynamite, fuse, caps, picks, shovels, spades and sledges. Every article is purely high class and will more than please you.

TOOLS OF QUALITY---KEEN KUTTER.

We have a full line of Keen Kutter tools, every one of which is fully guaranteed. We handle every tool in the cuttler line from a pen knife to a 12 inch broad ax.

We have tools that work, tools that are reliable—tools that are ready when you are—tools that will do good work on hard material, each the best of its kind and bears the trade mark which fully guarantees it.

We have Keen Kutter lawn mowers, drawing knives, hatchets, chisels, shears, pocket knives, etc., and if you'll buy one you'll be glad you bought it every time you see it; for our motto is:—The recollection of quality remains long after the price is forgotten.

VULCAN PLOWS PLEASE

To the farmer that likes a good plow we call your attention to the many advantages of the Vulcan. They are well constructed of best material; nicely finished, modeled to run steady and do first class work with least possible draft. The moldboard is strengthened reducing mold breakage to the minimum, and is so turned that it sheds the dirt perfectly. The point is of charcoal iron, with patented extension, long snout chill, wide edge chill and face chill. It is the strongest, best wearing, most economical point made. Do not forget the corrugated point! Stays sharp longer, wears better, plows hard ground easier, and cost no more than a plain point.

Made in sizes from 7 in. to 14 in. inclusive.

NUMBER 47

GOOD CITIZEN SUDDENLY CALLED.

Dr. J. O. Dixon Dies of Heart Failure
--One of Kentucky's most Prominent Physicians.

NUMBERED HIS FRIENDS BY HIS ACQUAINTANCES.

On last Wednesday afternoon, March 16, at about 4:30 o'clock the great and noble heart of Dr. J. O. Dixon ceased to beat and his soul took its flight for Eternity. The news of his sudden death was such a shock to the people here, who were all his friends, that they could but stare in horror at the thought that one so loved and that but a half hour previous had made a visit to one of his patients, could now be dead. But it was only too true and today the people of Marion and Crittenden county mourn for one of the purest and best men they have known.

He had just started home a few minutes before his death, presumably with the knowledge that God had called on him to surrender his great life and having a desire to die at home by the side of his faithful wife, where he could look into the faces of those he loved as only a noble husband and father can love, doubtless he prayed for this, and if he did God granted it for his soul never took its flight until he entered his home, exclaiming to his wife that he was dying and with her tender help lay down on his bed as the last breath left him.

Dr. J. O. Dixon was born in Dixon, Jan. 26, 1861 and was consequently in his fiftieth year. On June 20, 1889 he was married to Miss May Croft of Tolu, Crittenden county, who with their two children Galen and Mira survive him. Deceased was a brother to Hon. Sam V. Dixon of Henderson, the present commonwealths attorney for that district. After marriage he moved to Tolu, where he continued the practice of his profession he had entered on since he was 20 years old, subsequently moving to Marion on account of the advantages of the schools.

It is said of Dr. Dixon by his friends that he was one of the greatest benefactors to Crittenden county in consequence of his introducing blooded stock into the county creating a desire upon the part of his neighbors to do the same whereby old Crittenden is now the peer of any of the Western Kentucky counties in this line. By honest methods and the fact that he was every body's friend, he was able to leave to his widow and his two children as rich landed property as can be found in the county and a beautiful home in Marion.

The beautiful tribute paid his memory by Rev. M. E. Miller and the many hundreds of his friends at the Baptist church on Thursday evening March 17, was undisputable evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by the people.

The funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church by Rev. M. E. Miller, his pastor, in the presence of the largest assembly of sorrowing friends ever gathered at Marion. His pallbearers selected among his most intimate friends were-- W. B. Yandell, T. J. Yandell, Geo. M. Crider, Dr. Geo. Stone, J. B.

Hubbard, Levi Cook, Tom McConnell, Hon. Jno W. Blue, J. H. Orme and H. K. Woods.

A CARD OF THANKS.

We desire through the columns of the Record-Press to try, as best we can, to express our thanks to the vast number of friends of our dear husband and father for their help and sympathy in this the darkest hour of our lives. We want to thank you for the high tribute you paid his memory, you made us feel that we were not alone in our grief. That while our hearts were all but broken and our heads bowed in sorrow, great tears of love for him and sympathy for us were falling thick and fast from hundreds of eyes. And this recognition of the great love you bore him and the high tribute you paid his memory utterly disqualifies us for thanking you as you so richly deserve. But this token of your love and esteem for him has made the sun to shine brighter in our home, so suddenly deprived of a husbands tender care and a fathers blessing and through our tears we again beg to thank you over again for all you have done to lighten our burden. May God shower his richest blessings upon all of you in this life and ultimately reward you with a home in Heaven.

To those who contributed such beautiful floral offerings we feel deeply grateful. They were lovely and spoke plainer than words, the words of consolation they were meant to convey. We also want to thank Bro. Miller and others of our friends for their many words of comfort and for the high tribute his knowledge of the life of our dear departed prompted him to utter. All of these friends together with all they have said and done, make us to know God is a present help in time of trouble.

Now with a love that will last into Eternity we are

Yours very truly,

Mrs. J. O. DIXON,
MIRA DIXON,
GALEN DIXON.

Henry Hammack, Tom Clifton, W. J. Hardesty and Will Staton four of popular drummers left Monday morning for their regular trips.

A. B. TINSLEY PASSES TO HIS REWARD.

After Weeks Of Suffering--Loved And Respected By All Who Knew Him.

INTERMENT AT KUTTAWA LAST FRIDAY.

On last Thursday morning March 17th at 12:30 o'clock the soul of A. B. Tinsley passed into Eternity. Several hours before his death his faithful wife and the loyal friends who had been watching for the end for so long, discovered that he was quietly sinking to rest and when his life went out into the great beyond it was as if he had fallen asleep.

Mr. Tinsley was stricken with paralysis five years ago, since which time he had considered himself a great burden on his wife and friends and while at times he was able to be about his business he never rallied and as the repeated strokes would come he gradually grew worse until during his last few week of suffering the pain threw him into convulsion at times which seemed to impair his mind.

He was prominent in the business world and among business men, having at one time owned the noted mines at Mayfield and associated with Mr. S. W. Cooley in mineral mines here and elsewhere. Among his holdings now is 1,200 acres of valuable land near Yelville, Arkansas. In his prime he was one among the best and most influential business men and by them looked up to and respected.

Deceased was 51 years old at the time of his death and was a member of the Elk and I. O. O. F. organizations. He had been reared in Indiana until manhood, when he located first in Paducah then Kuttawa and subsequently Marion where he made one of our best citizen. The remains were shipped to Kuttawa on Friday where the last tribute was paid his memory by Rev. Thompson of the Presbyterian church. He leaves a wife and three children who have the sympathy of the citizens of Marion in their deep grief.

BASE BALL.

As the birds begin to chim, the base ball fans begin to realize that something will take place at our park soon. Our friend Mr. P. S. Maxwell has been busy setting out trees and getting every thing in shape for another years work and pleasure without base ball our town would practically be without any life, so we must rally to the cause and have the best nine in Western Kentucky with Cooperrider and Gosage in the box all other teams would look very small to us indeed.

In Memoriam.

On Sunday March sixth, Mexico and vicinity was shocked by the sad news of the death of Willis Crider, who was drowned near Steel, Missouri, where he had gone about 18 months ago in search of employment. The remains arrived on the 3 o'clock train Tuesday and were met by a large number of relatives and friends, who followed the remains to the Hill cemetery near Fredonia, where the interment took place Wednesday at noon.

The deceased was born and raised near here, was well and favorably known, he was 18 years of age and on account of absence was a suspended member of the F. E. & O. U. of A. He leaves a widowed mother and six brothers to mourn their loss.

He died as the golden sun of life was arching past the glories of the dawn, and the shadows were still bending toward the west. In the sparkling morning tide, when hope rode on fancy's wings toward ambition's goal; when the great artist was blending colors in the opening rose of buoyant life, the cold hand of the universal avenger smote athwart his brow, and he fell asleep with the multitudes that have gone before.

While yet in love with life and raptured with the world, he passed to the eternal portals. Perhaps in the happiest, sunniest hours of all the voyage, while eager winds were kissing every sail, his barque was dashed against the unseen rock, and his name enrolled with the dead. While we have buried this body, yet it is not without hope. We have faith in Him who conquered the grave and gave to the world the Golden Rule, which has become the chief corner stone of our beloved Order.

Only a dream. Only a dream. And glory beyond the dark stream. How peaceful the slumber, how happy the waking. For death is only a dream.

The Girl From the Effete East

By ARTHUR DENSMORE

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

BARRINGTON was completing his first year of practice when Theodore Tuppenheim arrived in Knuckleville. Mr. Tuppenheim was selling stock in the Charlotte Gold Mining company at 5 cents per share, price to advance to 10 cents at the end of thirty days. Incidentally he found time to foster in Barrington's bosom the spirit of discontent which ten months' fruitless waiting for clients had engendered. If he were a clever, clean cut young man like Barrington, did Barrington know what he'd do? Move west. He wouldn't fritter away his time in a mossbacked New England hamlet where people looked down on a fellow just because they'd known him all his life and could remember when he was a little shaver and went with patches on his trousers. No, sir. He'd just gather together his earthly possessions and take the first train for Gilt Gulch, Nev. There was the coming town; there lay the opportunity for an able young man to rise. No reason in the world why he should not be in the United States senate within five years. That would be coming some? Well, everybody and everything came some in that country. Why, sir, where the thriving city of Gilt Gulch now stood there had been less than two years since naught but sagebrush and alkali. And now look at it—just look at it! Six thousand inhabitants and more coming by every train! Stompy couldn't get houses up fast enough for 'em. Had to camp out in tents. And every blamed one of 'em making money. Why, sir, you couldn't find a bootblack in Gilt Gulch who was worth less than fifty thousand!

This vision of wealth and political prominence was quite too much for Barrington. He adjusted his affairs in Knuckleville, which was no very difficult matter, took tearful leave of numerous relatives and of a certain pretty damsel, who was not yet a relative, but had rashly promised to become one whenever Barrington's income should suffice for the support of two persons, and hid himself to Gilt Gulch, promising to send souvenir postcards from every municipality he passed through on the way.

Now, underneath the lurid exaggeration with which Mr. Theodore Tuppenheim had clothed his narrative of the rise of Gilt Gulch there lay a respectable substratum of truth, and the combination of Barrington's ingenious appearance with certain letters of introduction to persons financially prominent in Gilt Gulch, which Mr. Tuppenheim procured for him, resulted in his speedily establishing a thriving practice. For the most part it was work in connection with the location of mining claims, and, besides numerous fees in cash, Barrington acquired several claims of his own, which he disposed of profitably.

In brief, at the end of a year Barrington had waxed so prosperous as to feel that he ought to be marrying. The Knuckleville Weekly Times announced accordingly that it understood that young Mr. Barrington, for whom its readers would remember the Times had predicted a brilliant career when he hung on his shingle in Knuckleville, was now one of the leading men in the west, and the other village maidens were openly jealous of Susie Cutler, whose good fortune it was to be married to a millionaire.

But Susie herself had no illusions. She even refused to permit Barrington to come east for the marriage. Her childhood lessons of thrift and economy had taken deep root in her mind, and she would not, she said, have the price of a round trip railroad ticket thrown away. If Barrington felt that he must spend the money, let him buy a cabinet organ or a secondhand piano for the front parlor. They would be married in their own house at Gilt Gulch and after that take a little wedding trip to Colorado Springs or maybe Denver. Perhaps, being a prudent damsel, Susie desired to have a glance at Gilt Gulch before she committed herself irrevocably. At any rate, matters had been thus arranged, and, the date set for the wedding being but two days away and Susie due to arrive that afternoon, Barrington was in the state of ecstasy appropriate to such circumstances. It was in this moment of supreme happiness that misfortune befell him.

The work Barrington had been doing required to be performed with great accuracy; otherwise it is not only valueless, but may be the occasion of great loss to the client. Now, it is possible that Barrington possessed genius. People who have that, you know, are apt to be careless as to details. Perhaps it was merely that, being deeply in love, he could not concentrate his mind upon his work. However that may be, Hartford, the attorney whose office was next to Barrington's, had discovered in the course of an investigation of the records that Barrington had filed documents containing serious errors. He spoke to Barrington about it in a perfectly friendly way. Barrington received his kindly admonitions with a contempt which he was at no pains to disguise. Why should he pay heed to the remarks of a man who wore baggy trousers and long hair and played fiddle, to say nothing of becoming intoxicated now and then? He knew well enough what inspired these critical observations. Hartford was jealous of the prosperity which Barrington had so rapidly achieved. Let him stop caviling, said the various indignation to himself, and seek, as he had, leading a sober life, as he did.

Feeling that he had been insulted, Barrington thereafter confined his communications with Hartford to a curt "How are you?" accompanied by a barely perceptible nod when they chanced to meet. It was with a good deal of surprise, therefore, that Hartford, glancing up from his rather dilapidated desk as he heard the door open, perceived Barrington entering his office. One had not to look at Barrington twice to be convinced that he was badly frightened. His eyes, which ordinarily regarded those about him with an air of easy toleration, were wide with terror, and his well chiseled features, customarily wearing an air of placid conceit, were now white and drawn. His manner toward Hartford was no longer supercilious. All his carefully constructed attitude of dignity had vanished.

"You've been in this part of the country longer than I have, Hartford," said he. "I want your advice as a friend, you know."

Hartford nodded and withdrew his pipe from his lips.

"Sure," said he succinctly. "What's the row?"

"Why, you see," said Barrington, "it seems that in filing the papers for Jim Busby on that last mild claim of his I made a slight error. I have been doing a large business, you know, Hartford—a very large business—and it was inevitable that I should make a mistake occasionally. It seems that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of this purely technical slip and have jumped Busby's claim, and he is very much exercised about it."

"I should think he might be," Hartford observed.

"Yes," repeated Barrington, "he is much exercised and quite unreasonable about it. He came into my office a few moments ago and demanded an explanation. Of course I couldn't tell him anything except that it was just a mistake such as any man might make, and he said I was lying to him. He said I was too smart to make a fool break like that and that I was in with the gang that were trying to do him out of a claim that would have made him rich. I argued with him the best I could, but it didn't budge him. He said he didn't see that it made much difference, anyhow, whether I was a fool or a knave, because either way I hadn't any right to live, and he wound up by saying that he'd just go down to the Jolly Dog and get a few drinks to put him in the right frame of mind and then he'd come back and reduce the membership of the Gilt Gulch bar by one."

It is significant of Hartford's broad and tolerant temperament that he did not remind Barrington that he had previously predicted such a catastrophe as had now befallen. Nevertheless a slight glimmer of amusement stole across his face.

"So you want my advice, do you?" he asked.

"I should appreciate it very much," said Barrington.

"Well, you shall have it," said Hartford benevolently, rapping the bowl of his pipe against the heel of his shoe. "If Jim Busby were out gunning for me and I couldn't shoot any better than you can, and I had a comfortable little sum saved, as you have, and there were a pretty girl in New England who didn't know any better than to love me, as she does you, I'd go east on the half past two train, and I wouldn't hurry back."

"But the trouble is," Barrington explained, "Susie—Miss Cutler, that is—will be here on the train that gets in at 2:50. The train passes on the first siding out, you know. The fact is we are to be married day after tomorrow at noon. You'll pardon my omitting to send you an invitation, won't you? It was quite unintentional. I've been so busy."

"Oh," Hartford broke in, with a deprecatory wave of his arm, "you need not apologize. It's just one of those little mistakes a busy man is bound to make every now and then. I haven't Susie's disposition. I'll forgive you."

Then Hartford looked at his watch and found that it was twenty minutes past 2.

"You'll have to move lively, my boy," he said. "Keep an eye open for Jim, and if the coast is clear take the 2:50. If it isn't, walk over to Sand City and take the next one there."

"But about Susie," Barrington remonstrated.

"Pshaw!" growled Hartford. "That's easy enough. Leave a note for her with the station master, telling her to go back to Colorado Springs and you'll meet her there. If you don't have time to write a note, have the station master tell her you've been called away on a life and death matter and that she's to go to the hotel and wait until you send her word. Don't you worry about the girl. She'll prefer a slightly delayed wedding to an expedited funeral. Hurry up now. You've just about time to make it."

As he slipped down the main street of Gilt Gulch on his way to the station, Barrington caught a glimpse of Jim Busby's gaunt profile as he stood at the bar of the Jolly Dog, his back toward the entrance. Barrington's indolent heart rejoiced as he reflected that the ten mile walk to Sand City would now be unnecessary. It was just twenty-eight minutes past 2 when he reached the station. He gave the necessary instructions concerning Susie to the station master and rushed out upon the platform. But the train which made up at Gilt Gulch was not yet ready to depart. A freight car had left the rails, blocking the track. Fifteen, fifteen minutes passed, and still the obstruction remained. Barrington grew uneasy. Jim Busby might at any moment deem that he had another quantity of liquor consumed surreptitiously, to his great regret, the perspiring train crew succeeded in replacing the derailed car, and the freight train pulled slowly out upon a siding. Even as it did so Barrington caught sight of the 2:50 train as it rounded the curve just beyond the station.

A moment later Susie Cutler, her trim little figure set off by a skillfully tailored gray traveling suit and her face wearing the look of determination, betiding a girl who had just completed a journey nearly across the continent alone, descended to the platform of Gilt Gulch station. Barrington rushed toward her joyfully. Within three steps of her he encountered an obstacle—a very serious obstacle. This was nothing less than the muzzle of a revolver. Behind the revolver stood Mr. James Busby.

"Now, young man," said Mr. Busby, "we'll attend to your little matter, and we won't be long doing it."

Then Busby became suddenly conscious of a voice, evidently feminine, proceeding from some point in his rear and of the light pressure of a hand upon his arm.

"Do you know," said the voice, "it's dreadfully careless of you pointing that thing at anybody so. Why, it might go off."

Turning about, Busby looked into the piquant features of Susie Cutler. He decided unhesitatingly that, notwithstanding some freckles and the tendency of the nose to turn up, it was a rather pleasing face to view.

"So it might," said Busby slowly.

"Well, then, stop aiming it at Har—Mr. Barrington," she commanded. "You make me nervous."

"Fact is," said Busby, "I was sort of planning to shoot Mr. Barrington."

He had lowered his weapon and spoke very calmly and deliberately.

"What?" shrieked the girl. "You have the audacity to stand there and tell me you mean to commit a cold blooded murder? Where are the police? A splendid place this must be to live in, where a man goes out to kill another as coolly as he'd eat his breakfast?"

"That's the way with all you folks from out Boston way," grumbled Busby. "You're always getting murder and the administration of justice mixed. I ain't going to murder him. I'm going to execute him. He's done me dirt, and if he ain't killed he'll do somebody else dirt. So for the good of everybody he'd ought to be shot. What do you care any way? Ain't no relative of yours, is he?"

"Why, no," she answered in some confusion, "he isn't a relative exactly—that is, he isn't."

A gleam of comprehension shone in Busby's eyes.

"Come to think of it," said he, "I heard something about his being going to get married. Be you the girl?"

She nodded.

"Yes," she answered simply, "I'm the girl."

"Then," said Busby, "it's clear enough to my mind that in interfering with this execution you're preventing me from doing you a great favor. Howsoever, if you stick to it that you don't want him shot and if you'll take him out of Nevada and keep him out—"

The girl did not wait for him to finish. She transferred her grasp from Busby's arm to that of Barrington, who during the preceding conversation had stood silent, his face white, his limbs trembling, cold sweat beading his forehead.

"Come, Harry," she said imperiously. Meekly, with bowed head and downcast eyes, Barrington suffered her to lead him aboard the train, which was now, the track being clear, about to move eastward.

Jim Busby sat down upon the edge of the platform and burst into a roar of laughter. Long after the train had disappeared around the curve below the station the station master found him there, his broad shoulders still shaking with merriment.

"Well, you doddling idiot," said the station master, "what's the joke?"

"Oh, ain't he going to get his all right, though?" queried the mirthful Busby. "Did you hear her come, Harry? him and snake him aboard the train like he'd been a puppy latched to a string? He got out of being executed, but he's getting a life sentence, and that's a whole lot worse."

Senatorial Repartee.

Once in the senate chamber John J. Ingalls was directing some remarks to Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. The other senator from that state, Mr. Dawes, having come in while Mr. Ingalls was speaking, thought the words were meant for his ear, and so, interrupting, he asked Ingalls if he was directing the remarks at him. The Kansas senator turned slowly around, for Mr. Dawes sat behind him, and then, with deprecating intonation, but an instant while he said, "I was directing my remarks to the successor of Charles Sumner and not to the successor of Daniel Webster."

The repartee has become traditional, and the utterance was at once placed alongside of that reply of Conkling to Senator Thurman, which is also traditional in the senate chamber.

Conkling was speaking, and Thurman had said, interrupting him, "Does the senator aim his remarks at me; he constantly turns to me?" when Mr. Conkling, with delicious gravity, bowing to Thurman, with whom he was very friendly, said: "When I turn to the senator I turn as the Mussulman turns to Mecca; I turn as I would turn to the common law of England—the world's most copious fount of jurisprudence."

Do farmers eat the proper sort of food?

The farmer of today buys a much larger proportion of the food that goes on the table than he did ten years ago. It's a good thing that this is so because he has a great variety to select from. He should, however, use great care in selecting for the best results in health and strength.

The widespread tendency in the city to increase the amount of Quaker Oats eaten is due very largely to the recent demonstrations by scientific men that the Quaker Oats fed man is the man with greatest physical endurance and greatest mental vigor.

Farmers should give this subject careful thought and should increase the quantity of Quaker Oats eaten by themselves, their children and the farm hands.

Packed in regular size 10c packages, and in hermetically sealed tins for hot climates.

FRANKFORT LETTER CONTAINS INTERESING NEWS

Written By Our Worthy Representative, Marion F. Pogue, Who Works For The Interests Of His Constituent.

DELAYED FROM LAST WEEK

Frankfort, Ky., March 12, 1910.
DEAR CALMES:—

This has been a busy week in both houses. Many measures have been passed and in the two remaining days, as each bill that now passed, came through the other House and will be a law if approved by the governor.

The interest bearing warrant bill, which originated in the Rules committee of the House has passed the Senate and will become a law. It is the only measure to relieve the treasury which will pass and the governor can hardly afford to veto it. But it is current talk that he will do so, and will call an extra session to force a bond issue.

The Senate passed the Bond issue bill and defeating similar bills twice; but House Rules committee have put it to sleep to await the "resurrection morn."

The big banks, the liquor interests and people who got through appropriations or their salaries raised are clamoring for a bond issue for different reasons: The big banks and trust companies want to scoop up the entire issue; if bonds are floated; because they can not control all the warrants, most of which will come to the small banks in the country, or will be held by individuals into hands they happen to fall. The liquor people fear that an extra session might include a consideration of the county Unit bill, and the fellow who has landed an appropriation or a salary grab are threatened with a veto and an extra session if they don't get busy with their members and get the bonds through.

Those who are best posted claim that there will be no extra session and that the governor is only "bluffing," because taking his figures quoted in one of his veto messages at the close of the session two years ago, and the figures given out by Treasurer Farley now, we are in a better financial condition than we were then, by over half a million dollars, saying nothing about the quarter of a million spent in "exterminating" the night riders. The appropriations last session were almost two and one half million, this he chopped down one million, but this year after all the "cusing" this session of the legislature has had, no one believes the appropriations made will exceed one half million dollars, and with the increase in the valuation of the States property it does not look like an emergency for twenty year bonds.

The Senate has passed an educational bill which is more radical than the Sullivan law under which we are now operating the schools. It calls for more centralization of power and takes many thousand dollars from the school fund to pay new officials created to do work which others are already paid to do.

Those at the head of the great educational trust which seems to dominate the Senate say we must take this law or nothing. It has no chance to pass the Houses and will not even be considered; they tell us that the House bill we sent over to the Senate will not be considered, so it seems that the Senate has destroyed all hope for any relief to the small schools of the State by refusing to accede to the request made by almost unanimous vote of the House in passing Bill 461.

The so called Good Roads Bills have all been laid gently to sleep by the Rules committee of the House. The more they were discussed the less friends they had. The laity of the House are slow in accepting any bill on which the best lawyers of the legislature, and the State for that matter, can not agree or to the meaning of hardly a single section.

For the first time the Governors veto has been over ridden. He vetoed the bill requiring the names of persons in any pool to be recorded in the county clerk's office. It was promptly set aside by a vote of 77 to 11 in the House and 30 to 5 in the Senate.

Senator Paynter addressed both Houses of the General Assembly this week. He is fixing up his political fences to keep "Our Ollie" from breaking into his senatorial pasture. He spoke chiefly on the income tax proposition.

A bill has passed both houses allowing persons over sixty years old the right to decline jury service.

Senator Catlett's bill allowing pay to person summoned for jury service and not accepted has passed both houses. The Senate Bill authorizing the examination of State banks semi-annually will become a law. It is one of the most important measures of the session.

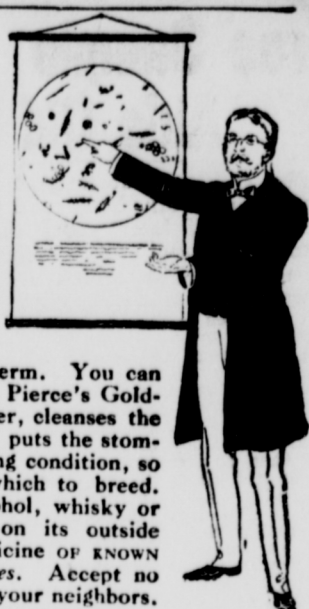

Will write you at length when session is over and give resume of the entire work.

Yours to save,
MARION F. POGUE.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

Free Sample Aids Old Men

The sudden change from years of activity of both body and mind to the quiet of later years causes the human system to undergo many changes, chief of which is in the digestive organs.

It becomes harder and harder to get the bowels to move promptly and in consequence many elderly men suffer not only from the basic trouble, constipation, but from indigestion, headache, belching, sour stomach, drowsiness and other similar annoyances. It is first of all necessary to keep the bowels open and then to tone the digestive muscles so as to get them to again do their work naturally. A violent cathartic or purgative is not only unnecessary but harmful, and something mild will do the work just as well.

After you have got through experimenting with salts and pills and have become convinced that they do only temporary good at best, then try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A mild, gentle, pleasant-tasting laxative tonic that is especially adapted to the requirements of old people, women, children, and yet is effective enough for anybody. Your druggist, who has handled it successfully for a quarter of a century, will sell you a bottle for fifty cents or one dollar, but if you want to make a test of it before spending any money send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell and he will gladly send you a sample bottle free of charge.

This remedy is rapidly displacing all other forms of medicine for the cure of stomach, liver and bowel trouble in families like Mr. O. F. Wisher's of Sycamore, Ill., and Mrs. Carrie Cullen's of 233 N. North Street, South Bend, Ind., are now never without it in the house. They have tested it and know its great value to every member of the family.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any medical advice you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample, simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 500 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. March 22. (Special) Not in a generation have there been enacted such scenes as characterized the stern and unyielding fight against Speaker Cannon as were witnessed in the House of Representatives on Thursday and Friday of last week. Through a coalition of insurgent republicans and democrats the power of the Speaker, as a member of the "Steering Committee," as the committee of rules has come to be called, was curtailed and the committee enlarged to ten members, six republicans and four democrats. Never in the history of the oldest newspaper man in Washington has there been seen so tense a situation and so fraught with deep significance as the fight which the "Old Guard" put up, against the reformers in the republican party aided and abetted by the democrats who saw in the movement to dethrone the "Iron Duke of Illinois" from his power and prestige, political advantage of the highest order. Fighting like a Spartan of old, with his henchmen round about him, Cannon met the inevitable with really a sublime courage. Reviled by his enemies and even hated by them and loved by his friends, Joseph G. Cannon put up a fight that will go down into our history along side of those other memorable legislative battles. So strenuous were the thirty hours of this contest that the official reporters, leadeneyed and heavy-handed, perfunctorily wrote and wrote their "hen tracks" while the battle raged and at the close of those thirty fateful hours to "Uncle Joe" and his band of regulars, the official score board registered the fact that 150,000 words had been spoken. When you consider that this number of words would make a book the size of General Lew Wallace's "Ben Hur" you get some conception of the talk on that St. Patrick's day and night.

Uncle Sam is formulating a measure to protect the consumer of apples from the dishonest orchardists, who in the past have been in the habit of "facing" the tops and bottoms of the barrels or boxes containing the fruit with fancy stock and filling in the remainder with "culls." The idea is, too, to establish a uniform standard as to the size of a box or barrel which may be used in shipping apples from one state to another so that the buyer may know just what he is getting, in the way of quantity, when he purchases a barrel or a box of fruit.

The committee on Agriculture has recently given growers, packers, shippers and commission men ample opportunity to express their views on the pending bill, introduced by Mr. Lafean of Pennsylvania and these hearings have developed the fact that all interested in apple growing in the Eastern, Middle and Southern sections of the country are satisfied with the proposition to establish Standard grades and Standard packages. Only from the Northwest has any protest arisen. The apple growers of the Pacific and adjoining states send to market apples which are as a rule much larger in size than those grown farther east. They pack their product in boxes which, while uniform in size, do not necessarily contain a bushel. The bill provides that barrels must contain three bushels and that boxes must hold a third of a barrel.

The bill when reported will, in all probability, fix a standard of U. S. grades. Apples two and a half inches in diameter may be marked "U. S. Grade A," those two and a quarter inches "U. S. Grade B," and those only two inches in diameter "U. S. Grade C." Apples less than two inches in diameter are not to be graded at all and if anyone cares to buy them he will do so with his eyes open and without a government guarantee as to grade. The bill, if enacted, will not only protect the home consumer but will go far towards re-establishing the reputation of American apples, which has suffered severely in recent years, in the markets of Europe.

It is expected that the Senate Committee on Commerce will report the River and Harbor bill with the Senate amendments within a very few days. The friends of the measure are very much worried over the prospect that these amendments will carry such a large additional amount as to seriously hamper its final enactment into law. When the bill left the House it provided for total appropriations of $42,558,156, which includes some seven millions for contracts recognized but not provided for. There are a number of Senators who do not think that the works in which their states are most deeply interested were treated with a sufficient amount of governmental generosity. They have amendments to offer, which, if adopted, will add from ten to fifteen millions to the total, there by increasing the aggregate to upwards of $50,000,000. While it is true that every project incorporated by the House and all those urged by the Senators interested have the endorsement of the Board of Engineers of the Army as well as the Secretary of War it is equally true that the President has been doing all in his power to keep down the expenditures of the Government to figures within the probable income of the Treasury.

River and Harbor bills are popular measures as a general rule, and Presidents dislike to veto such supply measures, but President Arthur returned without his approval one such in 1883 and some years later President Cleveland followed his example. There has been some talk heard about the Capitol to the effect that President Taft has expressed himself as being greatly chagrined over the apparent disposition of Congress to ignore his wishes in the matter of curtailing appropriations until the income of the government more nearly approaches the present outgo.

LETTER FROM Mr. RANKIN

Defending the Stemming District Association.

Dear Mr. Calmes:—With your permission I wish to say through the columns of your excellent paper, a few words to the tobacco growers of Crittenden county.

I have been asked by a number of farmers, what the Association was going to do in regard to the 1910 crop of tobacco. For the benefit of all who are going to raise tobacco, I say by all means let us pool.

The Executive Board aided and assisted by the county committee in each county, composing the Stemming District, will in the near future have pooling papers in the field, and every tobacco grower will have an opportunity to pool his tobacco.

Bro. Farmer, I know it has been said that the Association is in the hands of a set of salary grabbers, grafters and professional job hunters. I am also aware of the fact that there is a report being circulated that the remainder of the 1909 crop has been sold and the money squandered in paying high salaried officers; and that your ware house receipts are not worth the paper they are written on, and that the association was going to pieces. Just such false and damnable reports as these and many other just as willfully and maliciously misleading are being circulated and have been ever since we began pooling our tobacco.

Now what are the facts in the case? I answer notwithstanding all these misleading and contemptible falsehoods the Stemming District through the persistent toil of her good and loyal members co-operating and pooling their tobacco has put more money in the pockets of the tobacco growers, at less expense than any other organization in existence. But my friend, while we have won this fight, don't think for a moment you can lay down your arms and sleep on your rights; more than ever we need to stand guard, and present a united front. We want every farmer, whether he was with us in the first battle or not, to line up now and be one of us in holding this country free from another attack of the bold robber barons. Yours truly,

W. B. RANKIN.

DE STOMACH, OF WHAT USE IS IT?

Thousands? Yes hundreds of thousands of people throughout America are taking the slow death treatment daily. They are murdering their own stomach, the best friend they have, and in their sublime ignorance they think they are putting aside the laws of nature. This is no sensational statement; it is a startling fact, the truth of which any honorable physician will not deny.

These thousands of people are swallowing daily huge quantities of nepsin and other strong digesters, made especially to digest the food in the stomach without any aid at all from the digestive membrane of the stomach.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distressed stomach in five minutes; they do more. Taken regular for a few weeks they build up the run down stomach and make it strong enough to digest its own food. Then indigestion, belching, sour stomach and headache will go.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are sold by druggists everywhere and by Haynes & Taylor who guarantees them. 50 cents a box.
